Partnership for Native American Cancer Prevention

Francine Gachupin, PhD, MPH

Associate Professor

Department of Family and Community Medicine

College of Medicine

University of Arizona

WEBINAR DESCRIPTION

In working to address Native American cancer health disparities, it is imperative to build partnerships with tribal communities to increase their trust in the potential benefits of cancer research efforts. The Partnership for Native American Cancer Prevention was established in 2002 and the Partnership's approach is to expand capacity for culturally sensitive and community-relevant research on cancer and to continue to develop respectful collaborations that empower sovereign Native American communities to define, implement, and achieve their goals for cancer health equity.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Identify key elements needed in establishing research partnerships with sovereign Tribal Nations
- Describe the three primary pillars of the Partnership for Native American Cancer Prevention
- Locate additional cancer resources that include Native American perspectives
