

February 21

Tuesday

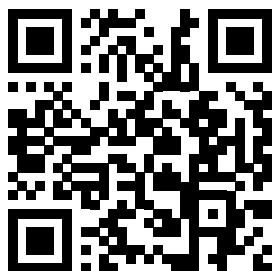

4:00 – 5:00 PM

learn.unclcn.org/cco-02212023

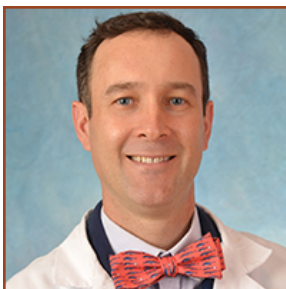

Available in one month

learn.unclcn.org/cco

Caring for Patients with Head and Neck Cancers

Trevor Hackman, MD, FACS

Vice Chair and Assistant Professor

Department of Otolaryngology/Head and Neck Surgery

UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center

UNC School of Medicine

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Catherine J. Lumley, MD

Assistant Professor

Department of Otolaryngology

UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center

UNC School of Medicine

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

LECTURE DESCRIPTION

Trevor Hackman, MD, FACS, and Catherine J. Lumley, MD, will discuss who makes up the head and neck cancer population and review work-up and staging for head and neck cancers. They will also cover the management of head and neck cancers and cover survivorship challenges, quality of life considerations, and surveillance.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Review what makes up the head and neck cancer population
- Review work up and staging for head and neck cancers
- Discuss management of head and neck cancers
- Review survivorship challenges, quality of life considerations, and surveillance